ORDINANCES REPEALED.

High Prices of Meats Cause Council to Pass Relief Measures.

The City Council held a called session Saturday night to discuss same matters in advance of the coming meeting Friday night, when the Cumberland Telephone franchise matters will be made a special order and other important business will come up. The called meeting was attended by all of the members except councilman Davis, who was in Lexington.

Two ordinances passed a year or two ago were repealed. One of these was known as the "meat ordinance," which imposed a license of $25 on peddlers of fresh meats from wagons. The other was known as the "huckster ordinance," and imposed a license of $10 on peddlers of "vegetables, fruit, poultry, butter, eggs and other produce" except when grown by the seller. The effect of the repeal of these ordinances is to give free trade to produce of all kinds and hucksters can retail their marketing anywhere in the city, subject only to the usual inspections of the health officer. The action taken is expected to very materially affect the living expenses of the people of the city, and also to be received with satisfaction by the country people.

Several other important matters were discussed and placed in the hands of the proper committee.

The 28 days required for the concrete floor of the North Main Street bridge to "set," will expire next Saturday and a representative of the Vincennes Bridge Co., is expected this week to meet with the bridge committee. The Kentucky Rock asphalt for street work will be shipped on the 20th.

The revival at the Ninth St. Christian church will continue until and including Friday night. Services will be held at the hours indicated above.

Sixty persons have presented themselves for membership in the Ninth Street Christian church, the most of them having made their first public profession of faith in Christ. Great audiences have heard the evangelists twice daily during the week just past. Sunday's audiences were as large as were ever assembled in meetings of a single church here.

Three times the large auditorium was filled--the last time not fewer than three hundred persons being turned away for lack of room.

Prof. Sturgis, who has been ill for several days, is sufficiently recovered to sing again as well as to direct the large chorus. On Saturday night he was wholly disabled. Miss Ellen Young took his place with grace and skill.

Mr. Sellers seems to our people to have grown since last year. He was vigorous, vital and splendidly effective in his work then. He seems to his hearers more so now. He is preaching such sermons as are not often heard in evangelistic meetings--sermons at once thoughtful, dignified, practical and popular. He is a great preacher.

REPORTED KILLING.

Madison Man Said to Have Slain Two Negro Night Riders.

Frankfort, Ky., May 8.--Information has reached the Adjutant General's office here that two negroes were shot and killed and a white man was badly wounded a few nights ago in Madison county between Kirksville and Richmond by a well known tobacco grower, whose property was threatened with destruction in the event of his refusal to grow a crop this year.

The information came direct to Col. E. W. Lillard, who has charge of the State troops in this section, with headquarters in Cynthiana.

Masked Men Call.

Col. Lillard's informant said that a half dozen masked men called on the tobacco grower late at night and made a peremptory demand on him to destroy his plants bed.

Upon his refusal to do their bidding they started to scrape a large bed of young tobacco plants when he repaired to the house and returned with a shot gun.

Kills Two of Them.

Opening fire on the marauders, he killed two of them and shot a third man's arm off. The latter is said to be a prominent citizen of the county.

According to Col. Lillard's informant, the occurrence is said to have been rigidly suppressed, although the informant volunteered to give the names of the parties concerned in the affair for investigation by the Adjutant General's department.

THE G. O. P. PLATFORM ENDORSES WILLSON

Adopted By the State Convention at Louisville.

FAVOR TARIFF REVISION

Delegates Instructed for Taft for the Presidency.

The Republicans of Kentucky in convention assembled hereby declare: We congratulate the citizens of Kentucky upon the election of Augustus E. Willson as Governor, and approve his efforts under great difficulties to restore law and order throughout the State.

We affirm the declaration of principles adopted by the last Republican State Convention, and assure the people of Kentucky that the State administration has labored faithfully and earnestly to crystallize those principles into written law, and that it will continue to do so.

We approve and applaud the splendid administration of Theodore Roosevelt. He has raised the moral standard of all departments of government to a higher plane than was ever before reached. Honesty, justice and the enforcement of law prevail as the principles of government. We favor a sound financial system, a great navy, the speedy completion of the Panama Canal, and a just and generous policy toward our insular possession.

We favor the revision of the tariff by a congress which understands and believes in the principles of protection to American labor.

We favor wise and just regulation of the public utilities which have become national public servants, and we oppose the dangerous and un-American doctrine of government ownership of such utilities.

We sympathize with all legislative efforts to lessen and prevent evils of intemperance and to promote morality.

We stand for the policies which have made the present administration great, and demand that those policies shall prevail and their objects be accomplished.

By natural gifts, by special training, by wide and uncommon experience William H. Taft, of Ohio, is fitted for the office of President of the United States, and we instruct our delegates to the national convention at Chicago to vote for him until he shall be nominated.

DUG GRAVE IN BED

And Night Riders Continue Their Depredations In Boyle County.

Danville, Ky., May 8.—Night riders dug a grave last night in a big tobacco bed on the farm of E. C. McWhorter, near Marcellus, and tied a bunch of switches and matches to the front door at the residence of Cleveland Rose, another farmer in the same neighborhood. The latter also received a note stating that unless he quit the tobacco business his house would be burned and that he would be beaten.

A reward of $1,000 will be offered today for the capture of the persons who dynamited the tobacco beds on the farm of Joseph Ware Sunday morning.

CURE YOUR KIDNEYS.

Do Not Endanger Life
When a Cure May Be Had

Why will people continue to suffer the agonies of kidney complaint, backache, urinary disorders, lameness, headaches, languor, why allow themselves to become chronic invalids, when a certain cure is offered them?

Doan's Kidney Pills is the remedy to use, because it gives to the kidneys the help they need to perform their work.

If you have any, even one, of the symptoms of kidney diseases, cure yourself now, before diabetes, dropsy or Bright's disease sets in.

Leslie K. Hickman, living on Arch street, Madisonville, Ky., says: "I do not hesitate to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. I tested their merits about three months ago and the results could have been more satisfactory. I had pain through the small of my back directly over the kidneys which caused me considerable annoyance. Stopping or straightening caused sharp twinges to catch me in the kidneys. I read about Doan's Kidney Pills and got a box. I noticed a decided improvement from the use of this box, and continued taking them, using a second box, completely curing me. I have every confidence in Doan's Kidney Pills and cheerfully give them my recommendation."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents, Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doans—and take no other.

IT SAVED MY LIFE—

WRITES ECZEMA PATIENT.

Bed-ridden Sufferer Completely Cured
by Use of D.D.D. External Wash.

One of the most remarkable Eczema cures recently credited to the well known D. D. D. Prescription has just been recorded in Chicago. Mrs. E. Heger, 1550 West Madison street, under date of Dec. 9, 1907, writes as follows:

"I suffered three years with Weeping Eczema. It started with a little spot on my knees and spread fast over my whole body. I spent hundreds of dollars and went to every good doctor I heard of, but kept getting worse. Nothing would stop the awful itch and burning.

"I had to stay in bed from the middle of May to the middle of July. Then I tried D. D. D. Prescription. This is the 9th of December and I am entirely free from the terrible disease. D. D. D. saved my life.

"When I began this treatment, people were afraid of me. I looked so terrible. My husband was the only one who would take care of me. D. D. D. stopped the itch at once so I could sleep, which I had not done before. Then I began to get better fast and now my skin is clear and white, not a spot anywhere."

Just a few drops of D. D. D. Prescription applied to the skin brings relief—nothing to swallow or drink. We vouch for D. D. D. Prescription, also the cleansing D. D. D. Soap, R. C. Hardwick, Hopkinsville, Ky. Get a bottle today if you have any skin disease. Begin your cure at once.

Origin of Pugilism.

Man being instinctively a pugilistic animal and the act being the simplest and most natural weapon, it may safely be assumed that pugilism, as a mode of settling difficulties, is coeval with man himself. So far as we know, boxing for men was introduced in the Olympic games in the twenty-third Olympiad, 708 B. C., and for boys in the thirty-seventh Olympiad, 608 B. C.—New York American.

Here comes the Spring Winds to chap, tan and freckle. Use Pine-salve Carbolyzed. (Acts like a poultice) for cuts, sores, burns, chapped lips, hands and face. It soothes and heals. Sold by Anderson-Fowler Drug Co., Incorporated.

Young people suffering from the symptoms of first love have had their trouble explained by Dr. James Crichton Browne, who ascribes the phenomena to a "species of cerebral commotion and a stirring of some hitherto dormant association centers by an appropriate affiliative impression."

For cuts, sprains, bruises, rheumatism and all other pains, use McLean's Volcanic Oil Liniment. First sold in 1852, the same effective remedy in 1908. Good for man or beast. 25c., 50c., and $1.00.

BLUEBEARD IN SKIRTS

Indiana Woman Who Buried
Many Murdered People
In Her Yard.

WIFE HUNTERS TRAP

Two Husbands and Three
Suitors Slain and Secretly Buried.

Laporte, Ind., May 6.—New horror was added to the Guinness murder today when another mutilated body was unearthed on the farm adjoining the ruins of the "house of horror," in which a woman and three children were burned to death on April 27, making eight since the search started yesterday morning, or 16 mysterious deaths in the case. This makes the Guinness farm graveyard for murder victims without a numerical equal in the history of America. The search continues. The postmaster this afternoon asserted that Mrs. Guinness was a Bluebeard in skirts, and that she received at least ten letters every day for years from all parts of the country in answer to matrimonial bureau advertisements.

There developed today the theory that Mrs. Guinness did not die in the fire which destroyed her home on the night of April 27 and that she is still alive and in hiding, probably in Chicago.

This theory is strengthened by the fact that the head of the body of the woman found in the ruins of the Guinness home after the fire is still missing although every effort has been made by the authorities to locate it, even to going through the charred timbers piece by piece. Unless the head is found soon the officers will make a post mortem examination of the remains of Mrs. Guinness and subject them to a more careful analysis to learn whether or not the woman was herself killed in the fire or had substituted the remains of one of her female victims for herself and then set fire to the house in order to cover up the crime.

The headless body of Mrs. Guinness lies at the morgue, burned almost to a crisp, but as yet no analysis of the stomach has been made. Flattrap Lake will be dragged for the missing head.

It is pointed out as opposing the theory that Mrs. Guinness is alive, that the day before the Guinness home was burned, the woman deposited dollars in the State Bank here. She was worth about $20,000 and her passion for money is given as the incentive for the crimes committed. A theory that she might be alive includes the supposition that she feared Lamphere was about to expose her through jealousy.

False Wall In Basement.
It is the intention of the authorities to remove the cement floor of the basement of the ruined Guinness house; and also to tear down a false wall which was discovered yesterday afternoon. That there is a hollow space behind this false wall is certain.

The sheriff believes that she is working in conjunction with some Chicago murderers and that another Holmes castle she will develop.

The sixth body within 24 hours was found at 9 o'clock this morning, which makes twelve mysterious deaths, the bodies of the victims having been found in the following order:

First husband of Mrs. Guinness.
Second husband of Mrs. Guinness, Jennie Glan, adopted daughter of Mrs. Guinness.
Andre Heldergreen.
Unknown woman at first supposed to be the body of Mrs. Guinness.
Three children of Mrs. Guinness.
Two unknown men.
Unknown female.
Unknown man.
Mrs. Christopher, the only neighbor.

BUSYBODIES VS. DR. RUTH.

Here Are The Facts—Judge For Yourself.

Busybodies who see in success only fastidiously, who, without making an effort to inform themselves, blantly cry offense against honesty and truth—seem to forget that a star against Dr. Pierce's well-known non-alcoholic family remedies is a star against the intelligence of thousands of clear-thinking American women who know they have been helped and cured by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is not a "patent medicine" in any sense. It is simply the favorite remedy which Dr. Pierce used in an extended practice for the treatment of the diseases peculiar to women.

Truth and Influence.

A name for honesty and square dealing is better than great riches. Fraud is a bubble that soon bursts. Dr. E. V. Pierce has always been known to speak the truth—his famous medicines are founded on the rock of public approval and have thousands of faithful testimonials as to their ability to cure diseases for which they are recommended.

True Speaking.

No man ever lost a prospective customer through telling the truth. In the long run the truth will prevail and he is therefore not afraid to make public his facts.

Valuable Trade Secrets.

The ingredients of Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription are given to the public. He vindicates the excellence and harmless character of his "Prescription" by letting all women know just what they are taking when they use this reliable tonic and nerve for the diseases and illnesses peculiarly feminine. These ingredients are combined in just the right proportion to make an efficient remedy, without the use of a particle of alcohol, and they are as follows:—Golden Seal root, Black Cohosh root, Unicorn root, Blue Cohosh root, and Slipper root, with chemically pure glycerine of proper strength for extracting and preserving the active medicinal principles residing in the above native roots.

No Alcohol Used.

Dr. Pierce never believed it necessary or advisable to use alcohol in the preparation of either his "Favorite Prescription" for weak women, or his "Golden Medical Discovery," the well-known alterative tonic, which is so largely used as a remedy for indigestion, torpid liver, bad blood and kindred ailments. Over forty years ago, he discovered that chemically pure glycerine is a far better solvent of most of the active principles residing in our native medicinal plants when used at a proper and sustained temperature than is alcohol; and, furthermore, he found that a glyceric extract kept much better than an alcoholic one, and that the glycerine possessed intrinsic remedial value, being demulcent, nutritive and an effective anti-ferment. Although costing somewhat more, Dr. Pierce prefers that glyceric medicinal extracts will, in the not distant future, largely replace alcoholic ones so generally prescribed by physicians and put out by proprietary "patent medicine" manufacturers, as being more efficient and entirely free from the serious objection of making inebriates when used in lingering or chronic cases, where a somewhat protracted use of medicine is necessary no matter how good or well adapted to the case it may be in order to obtain permanent results.

Dr. Pierce's "When the 'Favorite Prescription' is used in obstinate constipation, the little, pleasant, sugar-coated 'Pellets' should be taken to aid the 'Prescription.' One or two for a laxative, two to four for a cathartic. They alone have been known to cure many bad cases of stomach trouble, dyspepsia and indigestion. They act on the liver and regulate the bowels. Put up in glass vials, corked, therefore, always fresh and reliable.

He had expired without a struggle, of heart disease. Harry Tandy was a fine young fellow and leaves many friends. Two aunts, Mrs. W. S. Davison and Mrs. J. D. Morris, reside here. His wife was an heiress and his family is left well provided for.

FIFTEEN YEARS OF KEEN SUFFERING

Rheumatism Developed Burning, Painful Sores on Legs—Tortured Day and Night—Tried All Kinds of Remedies to No Avail—Wife Had Debility and Pains in Back.

BOTH USED CUTICURA AND ARE WELL AGAIN

"My husband had been a great sufferer with rheumatism for nearly fifteen years. At first it was in his bones, but after a while it was in the flesh and finally running sores broke out on his legs, from below the knees to the ankles. There are no words to tell of his discomfort and great suffering he had to endure night and day. He used every kind of remedy and three physicians treated him, one after the other, without any good results whatever. One day I happened to read about Cuticura. I bought a box and tried it. It was no use, I've spent enough money. The next day I ordered five dollars' worth of Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Pills and Cuticura Resolvent. He began to use them without conducting a trial. After three weeks all the sores were dried up. The burning fire stopped, and the pains became bearable. After three months he was quite well. Two years later the pains and sores returned. I used Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Pills and Cuticura Resolvent. They did me a great deal of good and made me well. Three months since I had pains in my back and Cuticura took them away. I can prove this testimony at any time. Mrs. V. V. Albert, Fort Franklin, Ky., July 21, 1907."

REPUDIATED HIS AFFIDAVIT

When He Found Two of the Men He Implicated On the Grand Jury.

BARBER'S CLOSE PLACE.

Other Happenings In The Night Rider Trouble In Other Counties.

Paducah, Ky., May 11.—After confessing to W. L. Krone, county attorney of Lyon county, his connection with the night-rider organization and making affidavit to the confession, Jodie Groce, a Paducah barber, found two of the men he implicated in his confession sitting on the grand jury at Eddyville, and swore before that body that the confession was procured by force. Groce was a barber at Eddyville where the Police Judge, C. C. Rucker, and eleven others were whipped and after that raid he came to Paducah. His alleged connection with the night riders was disclosed by S. L. Hall, of Lamasco, who joined the band to procure evidence against them.

Groce made confession here last Friday and Mr. Krone says he has four witnesses to prove that Groce called him out of the barbershop to make the confession. He went to the station to meet Groce Saturday to take him to Lyon county and found him there in custody of the Deputy Sheriff, H. L. Coleman, on the old warrant issued by County Judge W. L. Crumbaugh. Mr. Krone was surprised as Judge Crumbaugh, it was understood, had expressly requested that the warrant not be served. Then Groce appeared before the grand jury and said the affidavit was not true. In the affidavit, Groce tells of the meeting at Dewey schoolhouse and who administered the oath and who were present. The body that met was Dewey Lodge of Night Riders. He also attended a meeting of Friendship Lodge at Friendship schoolhouse and he gave the name of the captain and those present.

At that meeting two members had the pistols taken from Police Judge Rucker at Eddyville, and they made arrangements to go back masked and take the pistols to him. Two of the members of Friendship Lodge were on the grand jury before which Groce appeared.

Mr. Smith In Town.

Commonwealth's Attorney Denny P. Smith stopped over in the city Saturday en route from Eddyville to Cadiz. He said the outlook for night rider indictments was not good and he did not think any indictments would be returned unless the present grand jury was discharged and another empaneled.

Soldiers in Madison.

Richmond, Ky., May 9.—Forty-four members of Company G, Second Kentucky State Militia, Danville, mounted and under command of Lieut. H. T. Smith, rode into this city this afternoon.

Both officers and privates refuse to give any intimations as to their mission, saying they are under secret orders.

It is said they will investigate the reported killing of night riders in the county.

Troops have not been ordered here by the sheriff or judge but the appearance of soldiers did not cause them to be in the least indignant, and they will be gladly welcomed as long as they choose to stay.

Regrets Soldiers' Action.

Cadiz, Ky., May 9.—After a conference with the county officials this afternoon, Brig. Gen. Williams stated that he regretted very much the action of the soldiers in entering Trigg county and making four arrests; that he had issued positive orders to the soldiers to keep out of Trigg and not to make any arrests unless accompanied by the county officers or ordered to do so by him. He assured the Trigg county officials that the offense would not be repeated. The arrests were near the Lyon county line.

Convicts Interviewed.

Frankfort, Ky., May 11.—Before leaving for the East, Gov. Willson went to the penitentiary and had a long interview with Gen. McCoy and John Quincy Adams, the men convicted of night riding in Trigg county and brought here so that the Governor could talk to them about the night riders. It is not known what the Governor learned from the two men, but it is believed that he secured information that will be valuable in running down the night riders in Trigg and Lyon counties.

Mr. T. J. Hawkins spent Sunday and Monday with his family at Guthrie.

PADUCAH WINS FIGHT

Franchise Must Be Sold to the Highest Bidder.

Paducah, Ky., May 8.—The city has won its fight against the East Tennessee Telephone Company. The company has agreed to bid on a franchise to be sold by the city and to start the bidding at $7,500.

The condition is that the company be allowed to charge higher rates. City and company have been fighting for years over the matter of buying a franchise, during which time the company brought suit against the city, when the city removed 'phones from the city departments, to prevent interference with its business.

MUCH TALKED ABOUT

The May Music Festival to Be Held Here This Month.

Wherever you go throughout this region now, the subject of the May Music Festival, which is to be given under the auspices of B. P. O. Elks and the Union Tabernacle management on May 19, 20 and 21 is broached. It is rarely the case that the person inquiring about this great event does not signify his or her intention of coming for at least one performance, while many are coming for the entire time. Crowds are beginning to be organized in many of the surrounding towns to visit Hopkinsville at this time and everything points to a big attendance and a splendid success. Both the Illinois Central and the Louisville & Nashville railroads have granted a rate of one-third fare plus 25 cents for the round trip, these tickets are to go on sale May 15th and limited to return as late as May 22. This concession upon the part of the railroads is in itself a great recommendation for the worth of the festival for this is the same rate given Nashville, Cincinnati and Louisville for similar events.

During the festival Hopkinsville will more than sustain her reputation for hospitality and good fellowship. Every home will be open to friends from the surrounding territory and from a distance. Each boarding house and hotel is making special arrangements for the welfare of the guests which are expected. The Elks will keep open house at their club rooms on Ninth Street during the entire three days and everybody, big and little, old and young, will let other things go for the time being and devote his time and attention to making the visitors have a good time.

It was certainly a wise move on the part of the Elks and the Tabernacle management when they selected Crestore and his band as the star feature. Just the name of this celebrated bandmaster and the fact that he would be in Hopkinsville has been the biggest advertisement and guarantee of the character of the entertainment that could have been secured. Crestore's fame is known to everyone and those who have never heard him are always anxious for an opportunity, while those who have listened to him are doubly anxious for another chance.

Sophy of Kravonia.

By ANTHONY HOPE.
Author of "The Prisoner of Zenda."

Copyright, 1936, Anthony Hope Hawkins.

In vain will the readers of this tale of romantic love and brilliant daring search the maps of the world for the picturesque land of Kravonia, wherein lovely, fascinating Sophy and her mysterious Red Star played their parts. This much we may tell him before he embarks on his voyage to Kravonia. But we may assure him that when he reluctantly parts with Sophy, some-time scullery maid of Morpington, Essex, England, later spiritualistic medium of Paris, France, and still later of high rank in Slavna and Volseni, in Kravonia, the country of her adoption will be to him, like Zenda and Graustark, more real than are many of the smaller, actual kingdoms of the earth. Such and tragic in some of its aspects is the love story of Sophy of Kravonia, but its pathos is so lightened by devoted loyalty, hardy bravery and tender, self-sacrificing affection that at the end the reader will surely feel its telling has not been unworthy of the master hand of its famous chronicler.

Yet Sophy's march was interrupted once more. A tall young man set swinging his legs on the gate that led from the avenue into the road. The sturdy boy who had run home in terror on the night Eluch Good died had grown into a tall, good looking young fellow. He was clad in what is nowadays called a blazer and check trousers and smoked a large meerschaum pipe. His expression was gloomy. The gate was shut, and he was on the top of it. Sophy approached him with some signs of nervousness. When he saw her he greeted her moodily.

"You can't come through," he said firmly.

"Please, Mr. Basil, I must. I shall be late for tea."

"I won't let you through. There!" Sophy looked despairful. "May I climb over?"

"No!" said Basil firmly, but a smile began to twitch about his lips.

Quick now, as ever, to see the joint in a man's armor, Sophy smiled too.

"If you'd let me through I'd give you a kiss," she said, offering the only thing she had to give in all the world.

"You would?" he asked.

"Yes, I would. But I hate kisses. In fact, I hate girls all around, big and little."

"You don't hate Julia, do you?"

"Yes, worst of all."

"Oh!" said Sophy—once more the recording, "Oh!"—because Julia had given quite another impression, and Sophy sought to reconcile these opposites.

The young man jumped down from the gate, with a healthy laugh at himself and at her, caught her up in his arms and gave her a smacking kiss.

"That's all," he said. "Now you can go through, missy."

"Thank you, Mr. Basil. It's not very hard to get through, is it?"

He set her down with a laugh, a laugh with a note of surprise in it. Her last words had sounded odd from a child. But Sophy's eyes were quite grave. She was probably recording the practical value of a kiss.

"You shall tell me whether you think the same about that in a few years' time," he said, laughing again.

"When I'm grown up?" she asked, with a slow, puzzled smile.

"Perhaps," said he, assuming gravity anew.

"And cook?" she asked, with a curiously interrogative air, anxious apparently to see what he, in his turn, would think of her destiny.

"Cook? You're going to be a cook?"

"The cook," she amended—"the cook at the hall."

"I'll come and eat your dinners," he laughed, yet looked a trifle compassionate. Sophy's quick eyes tracked his feelings.

"You don't think it's nice to be a cook, either?" she asked.

"Oh, yes; splendid! The cook's a sort of queen," said he.

"The cook a sort of queen? Is she?" Sophy's eyes were profoundly thoughtful.

"And I should be very proud to kiss a queen—a sort of queen—because I shall be only a poor sawbones."

"Sawbones?"

"A surgeon—a doctor, you know—with a red lamp, like Dr. Seaton of Brentwood."

She looked at him for a moment.

"You mustn't smile, either away?" she asked.

Sophy's manner expanded into a calm graciousness. "I'm very sorry," she said.

"Thank you."

"You amuse me."

"The deuce I do!" laughed Basil Williamson.

She raised her eyes slowly to his. "You'll be friends, anyhow, won't you?"

"To cook or queen?" he said, and heartiness shone through his rillery.

Sophy nodded her head gravely, sealing the bargain. A bargain it was.

Chapter Three

It seemed somehow impossible, me thought to be cook there all my days. So writes Sophy at a later date in regard to her life at Morpington hall. To many of us in our youth it has seemed impossible that we should pass all our days in the humdrum occupations and the mediocre positions in which we have in fact spent them. Young ambitions are chronic only when they have been fulfilled—unless where a born autobiographer makes fame out of his failure. But Sophy had a double portion of original contentment. This much the records of Morpington years, scanty as they are, render plain.

The immediate result of this disposition of hers was unhappy, and it is not hard to sympathize with the feelings of the Brownlows. Their benevolence was ample, but it was not unbecomingly. Their benefits, which were very great, appeared to them exhaustive, not only above what Sophy might expect, but also beyond what she could imagine. They had picked her up from the roadside and set her on the way to that sort of kingdom with the prospect of which Basil Williamson had tried to console her. The square was an estimable man, but one of small mind. He moved among the little—the contented lord of a pin point of the earth. Mrs. Brownlow was a profoundly pious woman, to whom content was a high duty, to be won by the performance of other duties. If the square detected in the girl signs of ingratitude to himself his wife laid equal blame on a rebellion against heaven. Sophy knew—if not then, yet on looking back—what they felt. Her references to them are charged with a resonance whose playful expression, obstinately touched with scorn as it is, does not hide its sincerity. She soon perceived, anyhow, that she was getting a bad character. She, the cook in posse, was at open war with Mrs. Smilker, the cook in esse, though, to be sure, Smilker might have done something to reconcile her to Grouch!

Mrs. Brownlow naturally ranged herself on the side of constituted authority, of the superior rank in the domestic hierarchy. Moreover, it is likely that Mrs. Smilker was right in also cases out of ten, at all events. Sophy recognized that probability in after life. None the less, she allows herself more than once to speak of "that beast of a Smilker."

For the greater part of this time she had no friends outside the hall to turn to. Julia Robbins was pursuing her training in acting in London and, later, her profession in the country. Basil Williamson, who amused her, was at Cambridge and afterward at his hospital. A glimpse of him she may have caught now and then, but they had no further talk. Very probably he sought no opportunity. Sophy had passed from the infant's school to the scullery. She had grown from a child into a big girl. If prudent Basil kept these transformations in view, none can blame him—he was the son of the rector of the parish—so when hidden to the hall he ate the potatoes Sophy had peeled, but recked no more of the hand that peeled them. In the main the child was no doubt a solitary creature. So much is what scientific men and historians call "reconstruction"—a hazardous process, at least when you are dealing with human beings. It has been kept within the strict limits of legitimate inference and accordingly yields meager results. The return of Julia Robbins enables us to put many more of the stones—or bones, or what ever they may be called—in their appropriate places.

It is the summer of 1865, and Julia is very gorgeous. Three years had passed over her head. Her training had been completed a twelvemonth before, and she had been on her first tour. She had come home to rest and to look out for a new engagement. She wore a blue hat with a white feather, a blue skirt and a red Garibaldi shirt. Her fair hair was dressed in the latest fashion. The sensation she made in Morpington needs no record. But her head was not turned. Nobody was ever less of a snob than Julia Robbins, no friendship ever more independent of the ups and downs of life, on one side or the other, than that which united her and Sophy Grouch. She opened communications with the hall scullery immediately, and "Sophy was as much of a darling as ever" is her warm-hearted verdict.

The hall was not accessible to Julia nor Woodbine lodge to Mrs. Brownlow's little cook girl. But the square's coachman had been at the stable when Julia's train came in. Her arrival would be known in the hall kitchen if "You're beautiful!" cried Sophy.

A Danger Avoided.

It was a wise young man who passed before he answered the widow who had asked him to guess her age. "You must have some idea about it," she said, with what was intended for an arch sideways glance.

"I have several ideas," he admitted, with a smile. "The only trouble is that I hesitate whether to make you ten years younger on account of your looks or ten years older on account of your brains."

Then, while the widow smiled and blushed, he took a graceful but speedy leave.

Taking No Chances.

An English visitor to Carnoustie last summer was one day starting a match when his caddy asked to see his cigarette case and when it was handed to him coolly put it in his pocket. The visitor expostulated. The caddy responded: "It's all right, sir. I'll give it back to ye after the round. Ye see, I've gotten hauf a croon on ye, an' I dinna mean ye to smoke till ye win! Gang on, I'll take care o' ye a' richt."

Thrice-A-Week World.

More Alert, More Thorough More Fearless Than Ever.

READ IN EVERY ENGLISH
SPEAKING COUNTRY.

A President of the United States will be elected this year. Who is he and who is the man whom he will beat? Nobody yet knows, but the Thrice-A-Week edition of the New York World will tell you every step and every detail of what promises to be a campaign of the most absorbing interest. It may not tell you what you hope, but it will tell you what is. The Thrice-A-Week World long ago established a character for impartiality and fearlessness in the publication of news, and this it will maintain. If you want the news as it really is, subscribe to the Thrice-A-Week edition of the New York World, which comes to you every other day except Sunday, and is thus practically a daily at the price of a weekly.

THE THRICE-A-WEEK WORLD's regular subscription price is only $1.00 per year, and this pays for 156 papers. We offer this unequalled newspaper and the HOPKINSVILLE KENTUCKIAN together for one year for $2.05. The regular subscription price of the two papers is $3.00.

THE BEST IN KENTUCKY

This reputation has been established by the Louisville Herald in printing all the news all the time. During this, a Presidential year, you want a metropolitan daily newspaper in addition to your home paper, and you can best satisfy that want by ordering the Herald in connection with The Kentuckian. The Herald's staff of correspondents scattered throughout the State, and its source of news throughout the country, especially in Washington, D. C., enables it to give full and accurate reports of the conditions as they develop.

We have special clubbing arrangements with them, and can save you money. See or write us, not The Louisville Herald.

G. R. Newman, Agent.

into the avenue of old times about 12 o'clock, conjecturing that her friend might have a few free moments about that hour—an oasis between the labors of the morning and the claims of luncheon. Standing there under the trees in all her fiery—not very expensive fiery no doubt, yet fresh and indisputably gay—she called her old mocking challenge: "Sophy Grouch! Sophy Grouch!"

Sophy was watching. Her head rose from the other side of the ditch. She was down in a moment, up again and in her friend's arms. "It's like a puff of fresh air," she whispered as she kissed her, and then, drawing away, looked her over. Sophy was tall, broad, and her hair was a mass of red on a level with Julia's. She was in her short print gown, with her kitchen apron on, her sleeves rolled up, her face red from the fire, her hands, too, no doubt red from washing vegetables and dishes. "She looked like Cinderella in the first act of a pantomime," is Miss Robbins' professional comment, colored perhaps also by subsequent events.

"You're beautiful!" cried Sophy. "Oh, that shirt! I love red!" And so on for some time no doubt. "Tell me about it. Tell me everything about it," she urged. "It's the next best thing, you know."

Miss Robbins recounted her adventures which did not seem very daring at this distance. Sophy heard them with ardent eyes. They availed to color the mark on her cheek to a rosy tint. "That's being alive," she said with a deep drawl.

Julia patted her hand consolingly. "But I'm twenty," she reminded her friend. "Think how young you are!"

"Young or old, much the same in the kitchen," Sophy grumbled. Linking arms, they walked up the avenue and came near to the gates. Julia felt a sudden pressure on her arm.

"Look!" whispered Sophy, her eyes lighting up again in interest.

A young man rode up the approach to the hall lodge. His mare was a beauty. He sat her well. He was perfectly dressed for the exercise. His features were clear cut and handsome. There was as fine an air of breeding about him as about the splendid Newfoundland dog which ran behind him.

Julia looked as she was bidden. "He's handsome," she said. "Why?" she laughed low—"I believe I know who it is—I think I've seen him somewhere."

"Have you?" Sophy's question was breathless.

"Yes, I know! When we were at York! He was one of the officers there. He was in a box. Sophy, it's the Earl of Dunstanbury!"

Sophy did not speak. She looked. The young man—he could be hardly more than twenty—came on. Sophy suddenly hid behind her friend. "To save my pride, not her own," generous Julia explains; Sophy herself advances no such excuse, but she could see. She saw the rider's eye rest on Julia. Did it rest in recognition? It almost seemed so, yet there was doubt. Julia blushed, but she forebore from smiling or from seeking to rouse his memory. Yet she was proud if he remembered her face from across the footlights. The young man, too, being but a young man, blushed a little as he gave the pretty girl by the gate such a glance as discreetly told her that he was of the same mind as herself about her looks.

These silent interchanges of opinion on such matters are pleasant diversions as one plots the highway.

He was gone. Julia sighed in satisfied vanity. Sophy awoke to stern realities.

"Gorgeous!" she cried. "he must have come to lunch! They'll want a salad! You'll be here tomorrow—do!" And she was off up the drive and around to her own regions at the back of the house.

"I believe his lordship did remember my face," thought Julia as she wandered back to Woodbine cottage.

But Sophy washed lettuce in her scullery, which, save for its base purposes, was a pleasant, airy apartment, looking out on a path that ran between red hedges and led around from the lawn to the office of the house.

Gently she washed, as Mrs. Smilker had taught her, whether rightly or not is nothing to the purpose here, but how far away from lettuce that it seemed in no way strange to look up and see Lord Dunstanbury and his dog on the path outside the window at which she had been performing her task. He came hastily:

"Oh, I say, I've been seeing my mare get her feed, and—do you think you could be so good as to find a bone and some water for Lorenzo?"

"Lorenzo?" she said. He pointed to the handsome beast, which wagged an expectant tail.

"Why do you call him that?" Dunstanbury smiled. "Because he's magnificent. I dare say you never heard of Lorenzo the Magnificent?"

"Who was he?"

"A Duke—Duke of Florence, in Italy. He had begun to watch her face and seemed not impatient for the bone."

"Florence? Italy?" The lettuce dropped from her hands. She wiped her hands slowly on her apron.

"Do you think you could get me one?" "Yes, I'll get it."

She went to the back of the room and chose a bone.

"Will this do?" she asked, holding it up through the window.

"Too much meat!" "Oh?" She went and got another. "This one all right?" "Capital! Do you mind if I stay and see my cat eat it?"

"No."

"Here, Lorenzo! And thank the lady!"

Lorenzo directed three sharp barks at Sophy, and fell to. Sophy filled and brought out a bowl of water. Lord Dunstanbury had lighted a cigar, but he was watching Sophy. A new light broke on him suddenly.

"I say, were you the other girl behind the gate?"

"I didn't mean you to see me."

"Only caught a glimpse of you. I remember your friend, though."

"She remembered you too. I don't know her name, though."

"Julia Robbins."

"Ah, yes—is it? He's about polished off that friend of yours?"

His manner was perhaps a little at fault. The slightest note of chaff had crept into it, and the slightest was enough to put Sophy's quills up.

"Why not?" she asked.

"Why not? Every reason why she should be," he answered with his lips. His eyes answered more, but he refrained to let his tongue. He was scrupulously a gentleman, more so perhaps than, had sex and place been reversed. Sophy herself would have been. But his eyes told her. "Only," he went on, "if so, why did you hide?"

That bit of chaff did not anger Sophy, but it went home to a different purpose, far deeper, far truer home than the young man had meant. Not the mark only reddened; even the cheeks flushed. She said no word.

With a flip out of her arms—a gesture strangely, prophetically forceful as it seemed to him in after days—she exhibited herself—the print frock, the belted apron, the bare arms, red hands, the ugly knot of her hair, the scrap of rap she wore. For a moment her lips quivered, while the mark—the red star of future days and future fame—grew redder still.

The only sound was of Lorenzo's whining the last tough scrap of bone. The lady, gentleman as he was, was good flesh and blood, too, and the blood was moving. He felt a little uneasiness in his throat. He was raw to it. New, too, was Sophy Grouch to what his eyes told her, but she took it with head erect and a glance steadily leveled at his.

"Yes," he said, "I shouldn't have looked at any of that, and I shouldn't have looked at her, either."

Brightly the mark glowed; subtly the eyes glowed. There was silence again. He almost forgot to mark Dunstanbury's awakening. "Come, Lorenzo," he cried. He raised his hat and turned away, followed by his dog, Lorenzo the Magnificent.

Sophy took up her lettuce and carried them into the kitchen.

"There you are at last! And what's put you in a temper now?" asked Mrs. Smilker. She had learned the signs of the mark.

Sophy smiled. "It's not temper this time, Mrs. Smilker. I'm very happy today," she said. "Oh, I do hope the salad will be good!"

For he who was to eat of the salad—had he not forgotten print frock and soiled apron, bare arms, red hands, ugly knot and execrable cap? He would not have looked at them—no, nor at beautiful, many tinted Julia Robbins in her pride! He had forgotten all these to look at the stained cheek and the ugly knot of hair.

Such was her first meeting with Lord Dunstanbury. If it were ever forgotten, it was not Dunstanbury who forgot.

The day had wrought much in her eyes. It had wrought more than the drawing of her foot was near the ladder now, though she could not yet see the lowest rung.

A Gorgeous Sight.

It has become a stereotyped phrase with the dramatic and show critics to pronounce a performance or exhibition "a pronounced success," or a "triumph of managerial ability." Without exaggeration, however, the Gentry Brothers' famous Shows Unfined, now in its 21st year of popularity, may be truthfully and justly entitled to such criticism, as the public, always the truest and best of critics, has unanimously pronounced the show to be the grandest in appointment and equipment, the most instructive, the most comical and laughter provoking in its uproariously funny trained animal acts, and the most thrilling in its acrobatic and athletic specialties ever seen. With this universal verdict wherever the show has exhibited this year, we may expect a genuine treat of marvellous new, novel and mirth provoking specialties and performers as we have not seen here before. The Gentry Brothers' Famous Shows exhibit here on Saturday, May 16, at 2 and 8 p. m. on that date. Gentry Brothers are now negotiating for the purchase of a stud farm in this State, to which they will remove their famous blooded stock from their old home in Indiana.
